

Barbara Burns McGrath, R.N., Ph.D. is a nurse and medical anthropologist on the research faculty at the University of Washington School of Nursing with adjunct appointments in the Departments of Anthropology and in Epidemiology. Dr. McGrath is also on the faculty of the Institute of Public Health Genetics in the School of Public Health and Community Medicine, and is Director of the Gender Disparities Core of the Center for Women's Health and Gender Research. Her research interests include the role of science and technology in the health of populations, and the social and cultural implications of the Human Genome Project. Dr. McGrath earned her masters in nursing and masters and doctoral degrees in anthropology from University Of Washington.